

Avoiding a Supply Chain Apocalypse: The Best of Dr. Toms Advice

Copyrighted Material

In his creative guide Avoiding a Supply Chain Apocalypse – the Best of Dr. Tom, Dr. Tom DePaoli offers practical strategies and tactics, learned and tested from his purchasing and supply chain career. He does not recommend a single silver bullet or quick fix, but suggests a multi-faceted diverse approach to avoiding supply chain meltdowns. Dr. DePaoli challenges the reader to survey his best writings and to select what fits their particular organizational cultures. There is no one size fits all for the supply chain. As the importance of supply chain management grows leaps and bounds, the supply chain professional must develop multiple options and proficient tactics to insure the continuity of the supply chain.

Dr. Tom DePaoli is currently the Management Program Director at Marian University in Fond du Lac, Wisconsin. He is the Principal (CEO) of Apollo Solutions (www.apollosolutions.us), which does general business consulting in the human resources, supply chain, transformation, and Lean Six Sigma areas. The company was founded in 1995. He retired as a captain from the navy reserve after over thirty years of service. In other civilian careers, he was a supply chain and human resources executive with corporate turnaround, transformation experience, and Lean Six Sigma deployments. He has worked for over ten major companies and consulted for over 150 organizations throughout his career. Some of his consulting projects included: information systems projects, reengineering organizations, transformation, e-procurement, e-commerce, change management, global sourcing, and negotiating. His industry experience is in the chemical, paper, pharmaceutical, IT, automotive, government, consumer, equipment, services, and consulting industries. He has published extensively in journals, magazines, blogs, and books.
